

GOP TAX PROGRAM IN LEGISLATIVE CHANNELS TODAY

Governor's Controversial Tax Proposal Already Compromised

"EMERGENCY" TAXES

Seven Measures Apparently Headed For Clear Sailing

By Jack Ward

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 9.—(INS)—The Republican administration's tax program for the 1949-51 biennium was in legislative channels today, with Gov. James H. Duff's controversial gasoline tax proposal already compromised.

Seven measures, calling for enactment of so-called "emergency" taxes, apparently were headed for clear sailing through the General Assembly, but the gasoline tax proposal was due for a stormy trip.

The House convenes today at 1 p. m. and the Senate at 2:30 p. m. Prior to adjournment yesterday, the Senate confirmed scores of executive nominations.

The gasoline tax measure highlighted House activity. Although Duff originally asked for a two-cent hike in the current four-cent a gallon levy, the administration bill called for only a penny increase, indicating that a compromise has been reached to lessen opposition to the proposal.

In his budget message, Duff said he would be willing to compromise the tax increase at one cent if an additional $40,000,000 would be provided for road development by bond issues through a Highway Authority. The one-cent tax hike will yield the state an additional estimated $40,000,000 for the biennium. Despite the administration compromise on the new tax, the Democratic minority in the Assembly.

Continue Search for 3 Who Secured $2200

QUAKERTOWN, Feb. 9.—With no trace of the bandits as yet, police are attempting to track down the three men who at 12:50 Sunday morning held-up a young woman here, making off with $2200.

The hold-up took place outside Quakertown Sales Co. auction, Mrs. Evelyn Wernikove, 23, Philadelphia, a concessionaire, was hit over the left eye with a blackjack and robbed of a metal money box. The trio of white men is still being sought. They escaped in an automobile headed toward Perkasie. License plates of the car were covered with a newspaper.

Mrs. Wernikove was leaving the auction sale rooms with her husband, Herbert, 26, after closing their jewelry and lamp stand that is operated inside the building. Mrs. Wernikove had the night's receipts with her in a tin box, amounting to $2200 in cash and checks, she said. Her husband had stepped into their automobile and Mrs. Wernikove was following with the money box when three men stepped up, all unmasked. One man grabbed the money box, while another struck Mrs. Wernikove over the eye with a blackjack, and the third jumped into an awaiting car and started the motor.

The other two joined the third bandit and sped away. Wernikove followed the car in the direction of Perkasie, but lost track of the fleeing bandits. He then returned to the scene and took his wife to the Quakertown Community Hospital, where three stitches were necessary to close the wound.

CLEANED BY SCRIBES

Hauling nearly 20,000 pounds of steel overweight, the transmission fell out of a tractor-trailer while it was attempting to go up South Main street hill, Doylestown.

The truck, which was permitted legally to haul 45,000 pounds, was carrying 61,800 pounds of prefabricated steel which is 15,800 pounds overweight.

The transmission dropped to the street when the driver, John Hunter, Phila., attempted to shift gears. Sensing immediately what happened, he pulled on the brakes which locked.

To tow the 61,800 pound load of steel away, it was necessary for Howard Hall, who couldn't move the truck with two of his towing trucks, to use a dump truck in front of one of the two trucks.

The driver, who attempted to "jackknife" the large truck by letting it drift down the hill backward into Hillside ave., was unsuccessful in this operation.

A public installation of the Doylestown Assembly, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, was held Friday in the K. G. E. hall, Doylestown with approximately 100 members and friends present.

Miss Mae Light took office as mother advisor to the group and Miss Patricia Anne Keck was installed as worthy advisor.

DECIDE YOUNG PEOPLE ARE JUST AS RESPONSIVE TO GUIDANCE AS IN PAST; ADULTS SHOULD SET GOOD EXAMPLE

A teacher, a pastor, a YMCA leader, a mother, father, and two young people—comprising a panel for the purpose of discussing an assigned subject—last evening considered the question "Are the young people today irresponsible and unresponsive?" The Bristol Presbyterian Church was the gathering place for approximately 125 adults and young people who showed a keen interest in the subject before them. Not only did the panel members wax warm on various phases of the question, but as the hour grew late it became necessary for the moderator, the Rev. Edward G. Yeomans, pastor of the church, to call a halt to questions and comments from the floor.

Then the moderator gave this summation as gleaned from the opinions expressed throughout the evening: "Young people today are absolutely no worse than they were in any one period. Young people today are just as responsive to parental guidance as in years past. They are just as responsible when given responsibility. You cannot expect a youth of 17 to look at a problem the same as a man of 50. But a man of 50 must look at the problems of a youth through the eyes of a 17-year-old. There's an awful lot of good in young people today, and if the promise doesn't come out, it's because we as adults don't help to bring it out. Let's give proper example, inside the home and outside the home. Let us, as adults, inspire the youth."

The panel members were introduced by the moderator as follows: Miss Barbara Neher and Warren P. Snyder, Jr., representing the youth of today; Mrs. Charles I. Bowen, a mother; Norman Ryan, a father; Telford Eppley, of the Young Men's Christian Association; the Rev. Rowland L. Carlson, a minister, pastor of Harriman Methodist Church; and John Burris, a teacher, member of Bristol high school faculty.

For a fuller enlightenment on the question of the evening, the moderator defined the word "irresponsible" as "not dependable," and the word "unresponsive" as "failing to take heed," or "showing little or no interest." It was then declared that there were "no holds barred," and the audience informed it could put any of seven questions outlined on the program, regarding the subject, or other pertinent questions to the panel members for them to wrestle with.

As a means of opening the discussion, Mr. Burris took the group in fancy to the period 500 years before Christ, the period 100 years before Christ, then down to the middle ages. "According to records

EXPECTS TO COMPLETE SCIENCE ROOM SOON

Modern Laboratory To Be Set-Up In Langhorne School

HOME MAKING DEPT.

LANGHORNE, Feb. 9.—The new addition to the high school building is completed with the exception of laboratory equipment for the science room. This equipment is on order and is promised early this month. When the science room is completed it will be possible for pupils to perform experiments individually or in small groups in biology, physics and chemistry. Laboratory experience is essential in adequately preparing pupils for advanced work in institutions of higher learning. Theoretical learning in the field of science is of little value unless it can be applied by the learner to situations which confront him. As a matter of fact, this is a test that might be applied to any yearning.

The home economics department is equipped with the latest model stoves, refrigerators, sinks and other equipment used in a foods laboratory. Citizens who have seen the home-making laboratory are amazed that such up-to-date equipment has been secured. The General Electric, Hotpoint and Frigidaire Companies placed this equipment in the department at a substantial reduction in cost over the list price. As a matter of fact, the equipment was supplied to the school at approximately one half of the sale price. There are agreements with the companies which provide that newer models may be installed at any time to replace existing models. The increased interest manifested by teachers and pupils in this department of the school is indicative of the reaction of a well equipped laboratory on individuals. The Board of school directors is justly proud of the modern equipped home-making department. It is our hope that other departments of the school may be similarly provided with the equipment which will facilitate learning and giving the pupils a pride in their school.

The total cost for equipping the science laboratories and the home-making department will not exceed $5,000. At present prices this is regarded as a modest expenditure for two very important departments of the school. Patrons are invited to visit the school and to see the pupils at work in their new and attractively furnished rooms.

Mr. Heit's lifeless body was found by employees of the farm just prior to the holidays. Identity was established through an address book and a bank book found in his clothing. Burial was delayed while court officials attempted to determine if there were any survivors.

CLARIFIES RULES OF AREA RENT OFFICE

Registration Information Is Not Available In Unrestricted Way

INFORMATION GIVEN

Area Rent Office rules and policy regarding the use of rent registration by the bar and public were clarified today by Joseph T. Turchi, Philadelphia Area Rent Director.

The original or "area" copy of a rent registration on file at the Rent Office is not a public record in the sense of being available for unrestricted examination or reference by the general public, Mr. Turchi said. In the release of information appearing in such documents, the rent director must act within rigid discretionary bounds.

"In general," Mr. Turchi explained, "data concerning maximum rents and other pertinent matter comprising the rent registration will be revealed only to landlords and tenants of the property involved or to attorneys or licensed real estate operators who satisfy the Rent Director that they actually represent the parties in whose behalf they act and have legitimate grounds for their inquiries. Prospective purchasers who request information respecting the maximum rents of property they wish to buy should obtain it from owners of the property. However, in appropriate cases they may be permitted to verify their figures through Rent Office files."

Mr. Turchi also called attention to an increasing number of inquiries of this nature received over the telephone. Difficulty in identifying the caller and the frequent interruption of other important office activities make it necessary to decline the release of maximum rent information by telephone. A personal visit to the Rent Office or a letter stating clearly the identity of the writer, his connection with the housing accommodations in question, and the purpose for which the information is sought, will receive prompt attention and response.

"We are certain," Mr. Turchi concluded, "that with the understanding cooperation of lawyers, brokers and their clients in regard to this matter the efficiency of our operation will be improved to the advantage of all concerned."

SERGEANTS' IDEA

Flying weather over northern Europe this time of year, as many an American pilot of World War II knows well, can best be described as wretched. The turbulences sweeping in from the North Sea on the west, and from the Baltic on the north, leave low pressure areas sitting over sections of Germany and the lowlands for weeks at a time.

At Berlin, the fields that are the terminal points for the airlift are open, or partly open, only approximately one day of every three. Nevertheless, the big C-54s are landing there round the clock. Even on the ground the weather plagues them.

Freezing fog films wings and fuselages with a clear coating of ice within a few minutes. Ice on the control surfaces and leading edges of the wings had to be laboriously removed before takeoff.

Up to now, that is. Not so long ago a pair of Air Force sergeants got the idea that the searing blast of a jet fighter plane might be useful for something other than propulsion. Warning to their experiment, they backed an F-80 jet up to an ice-locked C-54 cargo plane. They gave the jet a little throttle and watched with satisfaction as the big ship was de-iced in a matter of seconds.

The idea has been approved all up and down the chain of command, and is now standard procedure on airlift fields.

The moral is: Never underestimate the restlessness inventiveness of a sergeant.

THE SOUR LOOK

Many persons who started to cheer when they started to read a news story saying that the "new look" was on the way out, ended by groaning when they read on. What is proposed is not a return to buttons and bows and nylon that shows. The fashionmakers, or some of them, are now conspiring to inflict on the populace the "crisp look."

Women are to look like salads—with dressing of course. They may even wear starched bathing suits! They are to look and feel cool but not cuddly.

The press release does not disguise its scorn for the "new look". The new look, it remarks, is really a "droopy look," a "limp look." It's "long and bunched." It's "dreary droopiness."

That's what a high percentage of men have been saying from the start. The trendsetters, of course, never admit it until they have something just as bad to substitute for a sour look.

In Germany food is being taken to the people by airplane. In this country a haylift is saving starving livestock. How did the world ever get along without the Wright brothers invention?

It must be taken for granted that Sonja Heine, the skating star, has lost two mink coats. Those who follow her in the movies have never seen her wear even one.

MORRISVILLE MAN IS BREEDER OF WINNERS

F. T. Schofield Turns Hobby Into Profitable Proposition

FINE RACING PIGEONS

MORRISVILLE, Feb. 9 — Cups, plaques, ribbons and certificates in the home of Fairbairn T. Schofield, here, attest to his position in the field of racing pigeon fanciers. The exciting hobby developed from the time Fairbairn was presented with a pair of homing pigeons by the family's maid when the Schofields resided near Newtown.

Since then a study of the breeding and racing of homing pigeons has held the attention of Schofield, who is said to rank among the country's outstanding racing pigeon owners. It is stated that his pigeons have probably won more races in the past 16 years than any loft in the country.

In 1948 his pigeons won 14 races; a record that has probably never been equaled by one loft in a single year, and will stand for a long time to come, unless he breaks it himself. Those races were all sponsored by racing pigeon clubs belonging to the two main pigeon organizations in the United States; the International Federation of American Homing Pigeon Fanciers and The American Racing Pigeon Union.

Schofield is a die maker in the Vulcanized Rubber Company. His pigeon breeding and racing are strictly a hobby. However, since starting with racing pigeons as a school boy in 1922, he has made it a major part of his activities and a profitable one at that. In the past four years his income from prize monies has enabled him to pursue his hobby without recourse to the family budget.

Schofield maintains three lofts of birds: one breeding loft, one for the older pigeons and one for the younger pigeons.

The predominating strain in Schofield's pigeon is known as the Hanseatic strain, with some Looneyveldt, Trenton, Werge, and Marvan interbred from time to time. In all the time he has been breeding his own strain of birds Schofield says that he has only been able to procure about six birds that have proven to be as good as his own. Those were used to strengthen the blood lines in the pigeons he produces.

At the present time he is a member of the Olney (Philadelphia) Racing Pigeon Club. He was at one time a member of a local pigeon fanciers club but soon joined the larger organization from Philadelphia. The Olney club is a member of the Tri-State Conference, an organization of approximately 200 lofts in New Jersey, Delaware and Pennsylvania. The lofts are broken down into groups with 8 to 16 lofts in each club. There are approximately 200 clubs in the United States.

Races are staged by different clubs in the conference with the distances varying from 100 to 600 miles. All participating clubs in the conference are eligible to enter these races. Each club member then pay a fee to the club staging the race as well as the Tri-State Conference. From these entrance fees is derived the prize money. Not only can a loft owner vie for the prizes offered in the conference races but as often is the case vie with each of the members of his own particular club.

Schofield's pigeons have won races at every distance 100, 150, 200, 300, 400, 500 and 600 miles sponsored by clubs in the conference. Since he joined the Olney group his young birds have posted a hard-to-equal record of winning five conference races in one season. Using a team of 15 to 20 pigeons in each race, both young and old birds where there are no limitations, the Schofield pigeons are proving themselves second to none on hard flying days and long races against head winds.

Fortune smiles on those who make a habit of reading Courier Want Ads.

Decide Young People Are Just As Responsive To Guidance As In The Past

of those times youth was "going to the dogs" just as many people claim today. And today youths are still said to be irresponsible by many. It is possibly an "eternal conflict," but as society becomes more complex the problem becomes more difficult. I feel most youth is responsive, but needs help and guidance often as it comes up against a blank wall.

A question was then addressed from the audience to the Rev. Mr. Carlson. "Are all adults responsible and responsive?" His reply was "The observation easily made is that they are not." He added: "I feel many parents live in the past and fail to recognize that many factors have changed in the lives of youth. Our culture has changed in the past 16 years than any loft in the country."

In 1948 his pigeons won 14 races; a record that has probably never been equaled by one loft in a single year, and will stand for a long time to come, unless he breaks it himself. Races are staged by different clubs in the conference with the distances varying from 100 to 600 miles. All participating clubs in the conference are eligible to enter these races. Each club member then pay a fee to the club staging the race as well as the Tri-State Conference. From these entrance fees is derived the prize money. Not only can a loft owner vie for the prizes offered in the conference races but as often is the case vie with each of the members of his own particular club.

Schofield's pigeons have won races at every distance 100, 150, 200, 300, 400, 500 and 600 miles sponsored by clubs in the conference. Since he joined the Olney group his young birds have posted a hard-to-equal record of winning five conference races in one season. Using a team of 15 to 20 pigeons in each race, both young and old birds where there are no limitations, the Schofield pigeons are proving themselves second to none on hard flying days and long races against head winds.

of those times youth was "going to the dogs" just as many people claim today. And today youths are still said to be irresponsible by many. It is possibly an "eternal conflict," but as society becomes more complex the problem becomes more difficult. I feel most youth is responsive, but needs help and guidance often as it comes up against a blank wall.

A question was then addressed from the audience to the Rev. Mr. Carlson. "Are all adults responsible and responsive?" His reply was "The observation easily made is that they are not." He added: "I feel many parents live in the past and fail to recognize that many factors have changed in the lives of youth. Our culture has changed in the past 16 years than any loft in the country."

In 1948 his pigeons won 14 races; a record that has probably never been equaled by one loft in a single year, and will stand for a long time to come, unless he breaks it himself. Those races were all sponsored by racing pigeon clubs belonging to the two main pigeon organizations in the United States; the International Federation of American Homing Pigeon Fanciers and The American Racing Pigeon Union.

Schofield is a die maker in the Vulcanized Rubber Company. His pigeon breeding and racing are strictly a hobby. However, since starting with racing pigeons as a school boy in 1922, he has made it a major part of his activities and a profitable one at that. In the past four years his income from prize monies has enabled him to pursue his hobby without recourse to the family budget.

Schofield maintains three lofts of birds: one breeding loft, one for the older pigeons and one for the younger pigeons.

The predominating strain in Schofield's pigeon is known as the Hanseatic strain, with some Looneyveldt, Trenton, Werge, and Marvan interbred from time to time. In all the time he has been breeding his own strain of birds Schofield says that he has only been able to procure about six birds that have proven to be as good as his own. Those were used to strengthen the blood lines in the pigeons he produces.

At the present time he is a member of the Olney (Philadelphia) Racing Pigeon Club. He was at one time a member of a local pigeon fanciers club but soon joined the larger organization from Philadelphia. The Olney club is a member of the Tri-State Conference, an organization of approximately 200 lofts in New Jersey, Delaware and Pennsylvania. The lofts are broken down into groups with 8 to 16 lofts in each club. There are approximately 200 clubs in the United States.

JUNIOR VARSITY BACK IN WIN COLUMN

Coach Harry McClister's Bristol High Junior Varsity went back into the win column last night on the local court with a 37-31 win over the Newtown Comets.

The Comets furnished the Jayvees with plenty of competition. They fought an uphill battle from the start, trailing 13-5, in the first quarter. At half-time, Bristol was leading 21-15. At the end of the third session, Bristol was ahead, 28-23. This went to 29-23 on Puchino's foul.

Then suddenly, the Comets staged a rally and with Woodward and Mench leading the attack whittled the Bristol lead to one point, 29-28. But Pat Field and Dick Puchino both scored a field goal and each had a foul to increase the lead to 34-28. Newtown failed to recover after this surge.

ALUMNI AGAIN DROPS WARRIORS; SCORE, 45 TO 42

The Alumni team gave Bristol High a lesson in foul shooting last night as the graduates beat the Warriors for the second time this season. Final tabulations were: Alumni, 45; Bristol, 42.

The Alumni victory was in their expert marksmanship from the foul line. Fifteen times, an Alumnus stepped to the fifteen foot line for gift throws. Eleven times the sphere was dropped through the hoop for points. This eleven was the margin of triumph as the Warriors made but 8 of their 19 free shots.

Leading the foul shooters for the winners was "Johnny" Pindar, the leading scorer of the Bristol Basketball League. Pindar had a perfect night from the foul stripe with five out of five. So did "Bill" Wallick who made three out of three. "Easy" Mama had two out of three, Saxton, one out of three, and Stan Lelinski missed his only try.

From the field, the teams were deadlocked in goals with 17 each. "Ham" Konefal garnered eight of the Bristol field goals to give him 18 points for the night. Pindar and Wallick had 13 points each for the Alumni.
